This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1914 edition. Excerpt: ...been having much luck lately and we've all got to stand for our share of doing without things. I may have to do without a lot--" (He turns his face away to hide his emotion from Charlie. A sob shakes his shoulders. Charlie notices it and goes over clumsily and pats his father on the back.) Charlie-- "Gee, Pop, what's the matter? I can get along without a suit all right. I wouldn't have asked you if I thought you was so blue." Knapp--"Never mind me, boy. I'm just not feeling well, that's all--something I must have eaten--or a touch of fever." (He glances at the clock.) "It's getting pretty late, Charlie, and you've got to be up early in the morning. Better go to bed. Your mother and I have a lot to talk about yet--things which wouldn't interest you." Charlie--"All right, Pop. Good night. I'll see you in the morning before I go." Knapp--"Good night and--remember I'm trying to do the best I know how." (Charlie disappears behind the green curtain. Knapp stares at the table, his head between his hands, his face full of suffering. Mrs. Knapp comes back into the room. The baby is safely asleep again.) Mrs. Knapp--"You sent Charlie to bed, didn't you?" (He nods.) "That's right. He stays up altogether too late nights. He's always prowlin' ground the streets. I don't know what will become of him I'm sure. Dolly told me tonight she saw him buyin' soda for that red-headed Harris girl with the quarter you gave him. What do you think of that? And he says he saw her talkin' in the lark hallway downstairs with some German bartender's boy. What do you think of that?" Knapp--(Mildly.) "Where's the hurt? They're only kids and they've got to have some fun." Mrs....
