From the internationally acclaimed author of the Acacia Trilogy comes a story for cat-lovers of all ages...

Michael Stein is a cat. A clever one. He'll be the first to tell you that.

His girl, Lucy, dotes on him. He kinda likes her, too.

He's always had big plans for the future, grand ambitions. He was going to do wonderful things, have big adventures and really make a name for himself.

But that was before an accident changed everything. Now, Michael Stein finds himself in an unfortunate condition. He's not the cat he was before, and the new realities facing him are shocking.

More importantly, Lucy's in trouble. Michael Stein wants desperately to help her. But - considering his condition - how can he? It won't be easy.

Fortunately, he's a clever cat...

About the Author: David Anthony Durham (born 1969) is an American novelist, author of historical fiction and fantasy. Durham's first novel, Gabriel's Story, centered on African American settlers in the American West. Walk Through Darkness followed a runaway slave during the tense times leading up to the American Civil War. Pride of Carthage focused on Hannibal Barca of Ancient Carthage and his war with the Roman Republic. His novels have twice been New York Times Notable Books, won two awards from the American Library Association, and been translated into eight foreign languages. Gabriel's Story, Walk Through Darkness and Acacia: The War with the Mein are all in development as feature films. Durham's most recently released book, Acacia: The Sacred Band, concludes his epic fantasy Acacia Trilogy. He currently teaches for the Stonecoast MFA Program in Creative Writing and is finally giving in to his long standing desire to write for young readers (and their parents).
